SPECIAL PRESENTATION

A brief overview of the Department of Health Translation project was presented by Sasha Verbillis-Kolp, LCSW, MSW. Members of the task force and others members worked on this special translation project. The purpose of the project was to translate certain behavioral health screening tools (the RHS-15) into Haitian Creole. The RHS-15 is a mental health screening tool used in health settings to screen people for mind and body symptoms that may be bothering them. The tool is also available in many other languages. Every culture and language has specific terms/phrases to relate emotions and emotional distress. The purpose of this project was to explore emotions and expressions most appropriate and common in the Haitian Creole language. The tool will be used nationally and globally. The assessment tool is available for SER community partners and can be obtained by contacting Sasha Verbillis Kolp at: sverbilliskolp@gmail.com.
